

Beatles Tapes II (Early Beatlemania, 1963-64)

a humorous Christmas message, to wish their listeners a "happy crumble."

10. January 24, 1964 (Time: 2:12) The Beatles are interviewed on T.V. following one of their Paris, France concerts at the Olympia Theatre. The group discusses the French fans, their problem with the amplifiers, Ringo reading poetry and their upcoming first trip to America.

11. February 7-8, 1964 (Time: 8:42) THE BEATLES INVADE AMERICA BBC's Malcom Davis reports from New York. The news report beautifully captures the frantic pace and emotion of the group's first days in America. The report features an interview with WINS disc jockey Murray, The K Kuffman (one of the so-called "fifth Beatles"); teenagers waiting at the airport; the plane's arrival; at the Plaza Hotel; and concluding with the Beatles talking about their amazing welcome.

12. February 8, 1964 (Time: 0:58) The manager of the New York Plaza Hotel is interviewed after the Beatles have arrived. Screaming girls can be heard as he describes how many of his other guests have left for the weekend. His diplomatic assessment of the Beatles as an entertainment "talent" is quite humorous.

13. February 9, 1964 (Time: 2:11) George Harrison (with a cold and sore throat) is interviewed by telephone from his New York Plaza hotel room for Murray the K's radio show. The rest of the band is rehearsing for their appearance that night on The Ed Sullivan Show. That evening, the Beatles made their first appearance live on The Ed Sullivan Show and were seen by an estimated 73 million people, or 60 percent of all U.S. television viewers.

14. February 10, 1964 (Time: 2:01) The Beatles are interviewed in the lobby of the Plaza Hotel. They discuss their upcoming concert in two days at Carnegie Hall.

15. February 10, 1964 (Time: 5:00) Four girls are interviewed at the Plaza Hotel by a news reporter on why they traveled into New York City on the chance of meeting the Beatles. The girls are all very mature. Two of the girls describe sneaking up to the Beatles' 12th floor hallway before being caught by security.

16. February 10, 1964 (Time: 0:16) A Beatles promo is aired on Murray the K's radio show.

17. February 11, 1964 (Time: 5:21) Prior to their first official concert in the U.S. at the Washington Coliseum, the Beatles give a T.V. press conference, responding to questions from CBS, NBC and other press agencies. The topics cover the Beatles' impressions of then President Lyndon Johnson, his daughter, Walter Cronkite, and their singing ability. The Beatles' off camera chatter in discussing which network Walter Cronkite works for is quite amusing.

18. February 11, 1964 (Time: 0:57) John Lennon is interviewed by the T.V. press at the British Embassy reception in Washington, D.C. When asked, "Which one are you?" John replies, "Eric," which momentarily throws the reporter off his guard. Lennon gives his impressions of the American public and the wild reception at the Washington concert.

19. February 22, 1964 (Time: 4:05) THE BEATLES' TRIUMPHANT RETURN TO ENGLAND The Beatles are interviewed by telephone with BBC's Brian Matthew at London's Heathrow Airport of their impressions of America.

20. February 22, 1964 (Time: 1:38) The Beatles give an enthusiastic press conference in the Kingsford-Smith suites at London's Heathrow Airport, on their impressions of America. News footage of their arrival and conference was shown to British audiences on the program Grandstand later that day.

21. March 19, 1964 (Time: 1:21) The Beatles attend a luncheon at the Variety Club of Great Britain held in the Dorchester Hotel, London. Member of Parliament, Harold Wilson, presents each of the Beatles with a silver heart-shaped award for being England's "Show Business Personalities of 1963." Each of the Beatles gives a brief tongue-in-cheek acceptance speech.
